

Manager

Rating	Exceptional Year
Rating Description	All the following characteristics apply to this rating: - Performance regarding behavior, contribution and development are both within as well as outside the role visible and successful with a significant impact (not only within the team and/or department but also beyond, for overall bank results, for customers, as professional and/or leader, where this is not standard part of the role/function). - Employee growth is visible and successfully displayed both within as well as outside the current role/function. - Exceeds set goals (i.e. achieved more than 100%) and is role model regarding behavior, contribution and/or development within the department or domain.

Comment

Contribution – General

In general terms, and despite being one man down in the team for most of the year, Jonathan and team were able to maintain a good productivity level and quality of output. Which, at least partly, reflects the payoff from automation efforts that were pursued in prior years. Also worth highlighting are Jonathan's contributions in the implementation of the Global Data Platform, where Jonathan has been driving coordination between data / report users within CFO and across departments, and being a critical voice and sounding board towards the GDP project team. At times with friction / tension among stakeholders, and Jonathan driving heated / challenging discussions, but overall in a constructive direction and beneficial for progress of the broader project. Keep in mind to pick your battles, focus on those needed to win the war.

However, what made 2024 Exceptional for Jonathan, were the following two items:

- Jonathan went the extra mile, beyond the boundaries of his job description, to share his knowledge and drive best practices around data/reporting/Power BI, throughout the broader Rabobank organization. He does so proactively and informally based on his personal passion for the technical matter, getting himself connected with colleagues in other W&R regions, NA W&R departments, as well as DLL. Positive feedback received from various teams, proving both the value proposition of data / analytics as well as appreciation for Jonathan's personal efforts in spreading this. Besides the mentioned interactions, Jonathan continued to drive the Power BI user community he founded ("NA Power BI Guild").
- In the Q3/Q4 NA Next exercise, Jonathan was instrumental as contributor. Like in 2023 RAF Next, he again showcased the power of data / analytics, supporting our CVO ambition and enabling fact-based strategic decision making for NA (mainly Rural). Jonathan was able to think along on data requests, come up with good suggestions and best practices, and quickly turn around requests under significant time pressure as the NA Next effort was ongoing. Given the sensitive nature of the review, there were limited opportunities to involve other team members, resulting in ad hoc peaks in workload and the need to juggle other deliverables. Very well done!

Jonathan also participated in a global BC / T12 initiative around Rural data/reporting. That initiative did not gain much steam because of the organizational changes (as anticipated). I appreciate how Jonathan contributed to this initiative, proactively sharing knowledge and best practices from the regional side. And despite the low traction of the formal initiative, Jonathan did nicely convert this effort into informal, bilateral interactions with the other regions (mentioned above).

Contribution - Team Management

Jonathan did a good job on his BAU duties as people manager, continuing to deliver steady team performance and engagement levels. Great to see how the individual team members are growing knowledge / skills, confidence and productivity, with Jonathan as their mentor. Good to see that both his team members are actively pursuing training and development opportunities.

Jonathan also had one team member with an (under)performance issue. Given his lack of experience with handling such situations, it would have been better for Jonathan to get feedback and advice first

(from HR and / or myself) on how to best approach the situation, sequence of steps, best practices, etc. Jonathan has acknowledged this as a learning / improvement point.

Behaviour

Jonathan sets high performance standards for himself, and always goes for the best, structural solution for any situation. I personally find this a great character trait, and a key strength. We discussed that it can be challenging to keep up this quality focus, when you don't see colleagues and the broader organization reciprocate and joining your coalition. It will be beneficial for Jonathan to grow his ability to deal with this, so that it does not impact his own energy level and / or mood too much. Jonathan has clearly stepped up in his ability to control his emotions and flex his style in a way that increases acceptance / impact with whoever is on the other side. Keep up this trend!

Do not overlook, and remember to celebrate, the small wins that are clearly there to see, both in your team and beyond. Big change starts small. And remember that Positivity is an important enabler for people managers to build up rapport, followership and impact in broader sense. Towards your team and other colleagues, important to ensure you acknowledge good performance (also in public); you do this sometimes, but I think there is more credit to be allocated, and doing this will have an impact (everybody knows your threshold is high, so a compliment from your side will carry weight).

Effective and concise communication remains a development point for Jonathan. Jonathan tends to go long in his explanations / responses which may dilute the impact of his message with his audience. Picking the right level of detail and context in his story and responses, enough but not too much, is key. This applies mostly to discussions on (part)technical topics with non-technical colleagues. Being mindful of the audience, reading the room, tailoring the message accordingly, are skills Jonathan can develop further. And regularly checking in with the audience while explaining or presenting his story ("was this background helpful / if this is already clear, can I perhaps accelerate or skip part X?") can be a useful tool here and will be much more effective than repeating/duplicating.

Personal Development

In terms of personal development, in 2024 we started planting seeds for reviewing the "target operating model" for management reporting and (related to that) a potential new career step for Jonathan. We envisaged three potential dimensions to stretch the data/reporting capability: stretch towards other BC regions, stretch towards other departments in NA W&R, and stretch towards NA DLL. In 2024, both Jonathan and myself have tried to push for progress on each of these, to find out which one has the most potential, and to keep options open. While we made progress, this remains a work in progress and will require continued efforts (where Scott and Sjoerd will push and drive alongside Jonathan). As the value proposition of data/reporting/power BI has been proven out well in recent years, and is acknowledged by key stakeholders, I am confident that an opportunity will materialize sooner or later, it is not a question of If but When.

In relation to the abovementioned exploration of future / next steps, we also discussed potentially looking for training / development opportunities that could potentially be valuable, in the areas of e.g. communication, presenting. These skills will start to weigh more heavily relatively (to technical skills, which in Jonathan's case are well developed / undoubted) and will hence benefit Jonathan's ability to create impact at more senior management levels.

No specific items to highlight with regard to risk management / compliance goals. Jonathan is involved in / contributing to regular discussions around reporting risks/controls, EUCTs, etc.

Employee

Rating Rating Description

Successful Year

All the following characteristics apply (in greater and lesser extent) to this rating:

- Performed according to expectations or slightly above, with successful results in terms of contribution, behavior, and development for oneself and the team/department.
- Employee growth within current role/function is shown in a sufficient or proactive manner.

Comment

- Meets set goals (achieved 100%), potentially in 1 category (behavior, contribution or development) additional results.

I feel as if I have met the expectations of my role this year. I have not received any feedback to the contrary throughout the year. My team has worked on a wide variety of products that have had significant value add this year including but not limited to:

- Creating the Rural Lending Data Model and completely overhauling all reports for US Rural Lending.
- Creating the Input Finance Data Model and being able to provide, for the first time ever, ledger reporting at a loan/program level.
- Creating a v2 and v3 of the Wholesale Office Franchise Data Model.
- Enhancing the Insurance, Markets, and Rural NIS products
- Numerous quality of life enhancements to our BAU products (e.g. Flash, Packs, etc.)
- Better reporting around operational data for Legal, Appraisal, AFCID, and some areas of Rural Operations.
- Creating an FTE data model.
- Numerous quality of life enhancements to the Finance Data Model.
- Numerous quality of life enhancements to Power BI reports and the Power BI apps that support Rural, Wholesale, and Back Office.
- Etc.

My team continues to grow in our collaboration and communication with reporting teams across the region and Rabobank globally. We actively promote Power BI and support our coworkers in their Power BI learning journeys. Through all of this work, our team is widely seen as Power BI Subject Matter Experts.